Readings for the Feast of the Epiphany (pp. 404-405): Today's great and ancient liturgical celebration of Christ's "manifestation" recalls beautiful historical events replete with their own deep theological meaning: they reveal the answer to the question of why God became man – the central theme of the Christmas season. And that answer, of course, is – for the salvation of the whole world. The Magi who came from afar, as gentiles, to adore the Divine Infant represent the future coming of all nations to worship Christ as King and Savior. Isaiah's prophecy (1st reading) points forward to this universality, and St. Paul (2nd reading) tells the Ephesians explicitly: the great mystery has been now been revealed that the Gentiles are "coheirs" with Jews to Christ's promises. The magi had been followers of a pre-Christian pagan religion that somehow pointed toward Christ, and they now came to a fuller knowledge of the true God – lying in a manger! We too are called to a new conversion as we worship the Divine Child.

Learn About the Riches of the Divine Office: On Saturday, January 9 at 10 a.m. in the Mindszenty Hall our liturgical scholar Stan Metheny will give an informal presentation and and lead a discussion on the Divine Office (or Liturgy of the Hours), the official prayer of the Church. Coffee, tea and snacks will be available. It's free, but donations are appreciated for the use of the hall. RSVP by calling Vicki Wiese at 314-351-9102 and leaving a message or e-mailing smovstl@smov.info."
